I am 19 and am running linux now and it is much better than windows. Linux is not a corporation, a brand, or even an independant entity so much as it is the foundation of a new way to compute. An open, extensible, publicly owned foundation upon which anyone can "embrace and extend", in true meaning of the phrase. Linux is freedom. Winston Churchill once said that Americans always do the right thing after they have exhausted all other options, Americans will choose freedom in the realm of computing.

Make microsoft's punishment a punishment. Cold hard cash speaks volumes and is another expression of freedom, saying, here I am, worth, spend me as you may. Microsoft offers oppression and control, aid in liberation.

Thank You,
Jonathan Robinson.
